Oklahoma Orphans Are Assured Santa Will Grant Wishes

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—More than 3,000 Oklahoma orphans know there is a Santa Claus, and the time again is approaching when they'll write him letters listing the things they hope to find in their stockings on Christmas morning.

And there will be no disappointments, because Oklahoma has a Santa Claus commission which sees that the boys and girls in 25 state and private orphanages get what they ask for Christmas.

In a letter thanking Santa for a gift last Christmas, a small boy at the Goodland orphanage wrote: "All good gifts are from God and God gives you the presents to send to us."

Four men and a woman operate the commission established by the Oklahoma legislature in 1937. They are Frank Phillips, Bartlesville, chairman; W. G. Skelly, Tulsa, and Forrest E. Harper, Oklahoma City, members; Felix Simmons, Oklahoma City, treasurer, and Jessie M. Fountain, Oklahoma City, executive secretary.

The chairman and the two commission members are wealthy oilmen who get a big thrill serving on the board which makes the Christmas spirit the state's business.

Mrs. Fountain, known around the state capitol as "Mrs. Santa Claus," supervises the job of purchasing the many Christmas gifts and seeing that they are wrapped and addressed properly. Most of the requests are easy to fill, Mrs. Fountain said. She starts right in after one Christmas getting ready for the next.

Firefighter Suit Resists Heat High as 2,000 Degrees

NEW YORK — A suit which will enable you to walk into a raging fire and live there comfortably more than two minutes has been shown to the medical association by laboratory doctors from Wright Field, Ohio. The suit was designed for rescue work in the blazing gasoline of wrecked airplanes.

The suit withstands heat as high as 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit for up to three minutes. Then you come out to cool the suit. It has 18 layers which pile up to a thickness of about half an inch .

The first two layers are fiber glass, which is as white as driven snow. The whiteness reflects away some of the heat. The third layer is silver foil. The burnished silver also reflects the heat. The metal won't melt even at 2,000 degrees.

Then follow layers of glass cloth, in zones of three to four each, interspersed with aluminum foil. Layer 17 is coal black fiber glass coated with neoprene. Black absorbs heat. This layer close to the skin absorbs the heat from your body.

The medical men say a man can remain comfortable in this suit for more than two hours during a heat wave in the nineties. This seems to be a tip for manufacturers of hot weather clothes.

The final inner layer is nylon, not for heat resistance, but to make it easy to slide into with fire regulation speed.

Versatile Tool

This "adjusto-blade" tool is a time, space and money saver for the farmer and gardener and can be used at any season of the year. A product of the Coffing hoist company, the tool does the work of a hoe, an angle hoe, an axe, edger, trencher, sickle in summer and a scraper in winter.

The secret of its versatility lies in the adjustable blade which can be fastened securely in a number of positions. The head of the company which makes it, Fred W. Coffing, is the inventor.

The tool is sturdily made throughout, with blade made of heat-treated tool steel to insure extra toughness.

This Puzzle Made Scents To Man Assisting Skunk

WAUKEGAN, Ill—Fred Holtz, skunk rescuer, got no thanks for his good deed, but, in a way, maybe he did.

Holtz's problem was how to get a skunk's head out of a glass jug without being penalized by the skunk. He pleaded for volunteers, but had to cancel that when none appeared.

Holtz and his wife were aroused from sleep by a thumping racket outside their home in near-by Wadsworth. They found a skunk, its head stuck in the jug, frantically attempting to remove the unwelcome headgear.

A call to the sheriff's office, the Humane society and others brought no response.

Holtz decided on a plan of action. He donned what he called "protective clothing against a skunk" and found the jug headed animal under the edge of a water tank. Holding his nose with one hand, Holtz bent over, grasped the jug with his other hand and gave a quick tug. The jug came loose. Holtz continued to hold his nose and also his breath.

The skunk looked at its rescuer, then scampered away without a word—or anything.

HOT WATER BY WIRE!

AN AUTOMATIC electric water heater maintains a constant and plentiful supply of HOT water at all times—and at low cost. It takes only 1¢ worth of electricity to heat 4 gallons of water!

And—it will eliminate the costly use of your furnace coil that gives poor service at best in the winter and none at all in the summer. Tests have proved that the furnace coil consumes 20% of the heat from the fuel you burn in your furnace during the heating season. Then, too, the water temperature varies from scalding hot to lukewarm—often in inadequate amounts.

HOT WATER BY WIRE is as safe and clean as electric light . . . and once your automatic heater is installed you can forget it, whether you're at home or away. It costs so little. . . . Of Course, it's ELECTRIC!

&W. Official Killed Friday

Albert C. Tinsley, 49, of Crewe, superintendent of bridges and buildings in the Norfolk Division, N & W Railroad, was killed instantly at 1:30 P. M. Friday when struck by the boom of a railway derrick which he was operating while hoisting a 33-ton steel girder at an overpass construction on Route 460 just west of Farmville.

oad Workers lan For Snow

Virginia's snow fighting army is preparing for the winter campaign to keep the state's highways clear. Equipment is being put in trim, and crews are getting ready for a "dry run" rehearsal of clearing Virginia's 47,000 miles of state highways.

When the equipment has been checked and painted and minor repairs made, it will be thoroughly inspected to see that every piece is in perfect condition. This is quite often as the Highway Department has 1,571 plows which are attached to trucks, 14 rotary snow plows, and many duty V shaped plows.

Snow equipment will be supplemented, if needed, by bulldozers, scrapers, motor graders, and trucks which are owned by contractors, lumbermen, and private individuals. Each resident engineer knows just what there is in his territory, and has a list of the names and telephone numbers of all those whose equipment which can be pressed into service.

The snow fighting forces are highly trained, each crew having a definite job. Every plow is assigned a certain number of roads, and is on hand every night and day, if necessary, to see that roads are kept open. In addition, emergency crews are kept on the alert in the state's seven districts. These forces, consisting of five snow plows and ten trucks can be quickly shifted to any badly stricken areas in the district, and, if needed, to other districts. Like an army's reserves, they are kept in the line at crucial points.

The snow fighters in the 12 county Appomattox district will get their orders and reports from the Highway Department's FM station atop Poor Mountain in Roanoke County.

Later this month, a hypothetical test will fall, and the snow fighting army will go into action. The plows and crews will go through all the manuevers necessitated by the real thing.

WINTER WHEAT PLANTING DUE

Recommendations for planting winter wheat in Virginia have been made by P. H. DeHart, Extension agronomist at V. P. I.

DeHart advises planting around the average date of the first killing frost and at the rate of one to one and a half bushels per acre.

He recommends fertilization with 500 to 600 pounds per acre of 3-12-6 or 2-12-12. The 3-12-12 analysis should be used in the coastal plane section and in other areas where the soil is low in potash.
